Weyerhaeuser Company and Subsidiaries

PART IItem 1. Business

Weyerhaeuser Company (the company) was incorporated in the state of Washington in January 1900 as Weyerhaeuser Timber Company. It is principally engaged in the growing and harvesting of timber and the manufacture, distribution and sale of forest products, real estate development and construction, and other real estate related activities. Its business segments are timberlands; wood products; pulp, paper and packaging; and real estate and related assets.

Information with respect to the description and general development of the company's business, included on pages 18 through 24 and 26 through 30, Description of the Business of the Company, contained in the company's 2001 Annual Report to Shareholders, is incorporated herein by reference.

Financial information with respect to industry segments and geographical areas, included in Notes 23 and 24 of Notes to Financial Statements contained in the company's 2001 Annual Report to Shareholders, is incorporated herein by reference.

Timberlands

The company is engaged in the management of 5.9 million acres of company-owned and .5 million acres of leased commercial forestland in North America, most of it highly productive and located extremely well to serve both domestic and international markets. The company also has renewable, long-term licenses on 32.6 million acres of forestland located in five provinces throughout Canada that are managed by our Canadian operations. The standing timber inventory on these lands is approximately 400 million cunits (a cunit is 100 cubic feet of solid wood). The relationship between cubic measurement and the quantity of end products that may be produced from timber varies according to the species, size and quality of timber, and will change through time as the mix of these variables changes. To sustain the timber supply from its fee timberlands, the company is engaged in extensive planting, suppression of nonmerchantable species, precommercial and commercial thinning, fertilization and operational pruning, all of which increase the yield from its fee timberland acreage.

Wood Products

The company's wood products businesses produce and sell softwood lumber, plywood and veneer; oriented strand board, composite and other panels; engineered lumber; hardwood lumber and treated products. These products are sold primarily through the company's own sales organizations. Building materials are sold to wholesalers, retailers and industrial users. The raw materials required to produce these products are purchased from third parties, transferred at market price from the company's timberlands, or obtained from long-term licensing arrangements.

Item 3. Legal Proceedings

The company entered into a class action settlement of hardboard siding claims against the company that was approved by the Superior Court, San Francisco County, California, in December 2000. The settlement class consists of all persons who own or owned structures in the United States on which the company's hardboard siding had been installed from January 1, 1981 through December 31, 1999. In February 2001, two named intervenors and objectors filed a notice of appeal from the order granting final approval to the class action settlement. The company has established reserves to cover the estimated cost of the settlement and related costs. At the end of the fourth quarter of 2001, the company is a defendant in 14 cases involving primarily multi-family structures and residential developments. The company anticipates that other individuals and entities that have opted out of the settlement may file lawsuits against the company. In January 2002, a jury returned a verdict in favor of the company in a lawsuit involving hardboard siding manufactured by the company and installed by a developer in a residential development located in Modesto, California.

In May 1999, two civil antitrust lawsuits were filed against the company in U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania. Both suits name as defendants several other major containerboard and packaging producers. The complaint in the first case alleges the defendants conspired to fix the price of linerboard and that the alleged conspiracy had the effect of increasing the price of corrugated containers. The suit purports to be a class action on behalf of purchasers of corrugated containers during the period October 1993 through November 1995. The complaint in the second case alleges that the company conspired to manipulate the price of linerboard and thereby the price of corrugated sheets. The suit purports to be a class action on behalf of purchasers of corrugated sheets during the period October 1993 through November 1995. Both suits seek damages, including treble damages, under the antitrust laws. In October 2000, the court denied motions to dismiss the suits that had been filed by the company and the other defendants. The company and other defendants have appealed the class certification decision to the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals.

In May 1999, the Equity Committee (the Committee) in the Paragon Trade Brands, Inc. bankruptcy proceeding filed a motion in U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Georgia for authority to prosecute claims against the company in the name of the debtor's estate. Specifically, the Committee seeks to assert that the company breached certain warranties in agreements entered into between Paragon and the company in connection with Paragon's public offering of common stock in January 1993. The Committee seeks to recover damages sustained by Paragon as a result of two patent infringement cases, one brought by Procter & Gamble and the other by Kimberly-Clark. In September 1999, the court authorized the Committee to commence an adversary proceeding against the company. The Committee commenced this proceeding in October 1999, seeking damages in excess of $420 million against the company. Both the Committee and the company have filed motions for summary judgment, which are pending.

Following the expiration of a five-year agreement between the United States and Canada, on April 2, 2001, the Coalition for Fair Lumber Imports (Coalition) filed a petition with the U.S. Department of Commerce (Department) and the International Trade Commission (ITC), claiming that imports of softwood lumber from Canada were being subsidized by Canada and were being dumped into the U.S. market (sold at less than fair value). The Coalition asked that countervailing duty (CVD) and antidumping tariffs be imposed on softwood lumber imported from Canada. In August 2001, the Department issued a preliminary finding that certain Canadian provinces were subsidizing logs by collecting below-market stumpage payments and declared a preliminary CVD rate of 19.3 percent retroactive to May 18, 2001. The preliminary CVD expired on December 15, 2001. The company has accrued for the estimated cost of the CVD. The Department also requested that Weyerhaeuser and five other Canadian companies provide data for the antidumping investigation. In its preliminary ruling issued on October 30, 2001, the Department found that the company had engaged in dumping and set a preliminary dumping margin for the company of 11.93 percent. The company intends to contest the Department's finding that it has engaged in dumping but will now post a bond or cash to cover the estimated amount for the duties that would be collected in the event it is finally determined that dumping did occur. As of December 30, 2001, the company had accrued $50 million based on the preliminary CVD rate and antidumping margin. A final ruling on both the CVD and antidumping cases, which is expected during the second quarter of 2002, will contain the determination of whether to make the CVD and antidumping duties final and, if so, at what levels. The Department would then conduct periodic reviews over the following five years to determine whether the company had engaged in dumping and whether Canada continued to subsidize softwood logs and, if so, the dumping margin and CVD to impose. At the end of five years, both the countervailing duty and antidumping orders would be automatically reviewed in a sunset proceeding to determine whether dumping or a countervailing subsidy would be likely to continue or recur. The company believes that the controversy has created some volatility and uncertainty in the marketplace but has not had a material adverse effect on our results of operations. There can be no assurance, however, that if a permanent CVD or antidumping duty is imposed, it will not have a material adverse effect on the company's results of operations in the future.

The company is also a party to various proceedings relating to the cleanup of hazardous waste sites under the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act, commonly known as Superfund, and similar state laws. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and/or various state agencies have notified the company that it may be a potentially responsible party with respect to other hazardous waste sites as to which no proceedings have been instituted against the company. The company is also a party to other legal proceedings generally incidental to its business. Although the final outcome of any legal proceeding or environmental matter is subject to a great many variables and cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty, the company presently believes that any ultimate outcome resulting from these proceedings and matters, or all of them combined, would not have a material effect on the company's current financial position, liquidity or results of operations; however, in any given future reporting period, such proceedings or matters could have a material effect on results of operations.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT SCHEDULES

Report of Independent Public Accountants on Financial Statement Schedules

To Weyerhaeuser Company:

We have audited in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States, the financial statements included in Weyerhaeuser Company's annual report to shareholders incorporated by reference in this Form 10-K, and have issued our report thereon dated February 11, 2002. Our audit was made for the purpose of forming an opinion on those statements taken as a whole. The schedule shown on page 19 is the responsibility of the company's management and is presented for purposes of complying with the Securities and Exchange Commission's rules and is not part of the basic financial statements. This schedule has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, fairly states in all material respects the financial data required to be set forth therein in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.
