ORIX's Earnings Grow 20% in the Nine Months Ended December 31, 2002

TOKYO, Japan -- February 5, 2003 -- ORIX Corporation (TSE: 8591; NYSE: IX), a leading financial services provider, today announced that net income for the third quarter (October 1 to December 31, 2002) of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2003 was 12.4 billion yen (US$104 million*), up 34 percent year on year, while net income for the nine months ended December 31, 2002 reached 35.2 million yen (US$294 million*), an increase of 20 percent compared with the same nine months of the previous fiscal year.

Profit growth was sustained by continued steady performance of corporate leasing and lending in the corporate finance segment, combined with strong growth in the real estate-related finance segment and consumer card loan operations in Japan.

Third Quarter Highlights (October 1-December 31, 2002)

Revenues in the third quarter increased 10% year on year to 163,169 million yen. Strong performance of the residential condominium development business resulted in increases in residential condominium sales, while other operating revenues rose due to revenues from companies in which investments were made as part of ORIX's corporate restructuring business. While there was a decrease in interest expense and write-downs of securities, selling, general and administrative expenses were up and costs of residential condominium sales and other operating expenses increased in line with revenue growth. Overall, expenses increased 8% year on year.

Operating income rose to 20,987, up 32%, compared with the third quarter of the previous fiscal year. Furthermore, an increase in equity in net income (loss) of and gain (loss) on sales of affiliates in the third quarter contributed to a 42% increase in income before income taxes to 23,302 million yen and a 34% rise in net income to 12,449 million yen.

Nine-Month Highlights (April 1-December 31, 2002)

In the nine months ended December 31, 2002, both residential condominium sales and other operating revenues rose sharply, while interest on loans and investment securities also increased as a result of an increase in the balance of housing loans and consumer card loans to individuals in Japan. While there was a decrease in revenues in the life insurance operations owing to a change in business strategy, overall revenues were up 4% year on year to 497,897 million yen.

On the expense side, lower interest rates and a decrease in debt led to a drop in interest expense, while life insurance costs declined in line with lower life insurance revenues. On the other hand, selling, general and administrative expenses increased mainly due to acquisitions that were made in the second half of the previous fiscal year and increased costs associated with the expansion of consumer lending operations. In addition, the write-down of a golf course recorded as write-downs of long-lived assets in the second quarter and the increase in costs of residential condominium sales that accompanied the increase in revenues from residential condominium development, resulted in an increase in overall expenses of 4% year on year to 442,275 million yen.

In addition to a 4% increase in operating income, a 5,676 million yen gain in equity in net income (loss) of and gain (loss) on sales of affiliates, and the recognition of 1,937 million yen due to the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle resulted in a 20% rise in net income year on year to 35,212 million yen.

Forecasts for the Fiscal Year Ending March 31, 2003

While the economic environment in Japan and overseas remains severe, ORIX's earnings for the nine months ended December 31, 2002 demonstrated comparatively stable growth. ORIX reaffirmed its earnings forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2003, projecting revenues of 680 billion yen (up 3% compared with the fiscal year ended March 31, 2002), income before income taxes of 80 billion yen (up 10%), and net income of 46 billion yen (up 14%).
