Section 5. Business Review and Prospects and Management's Discussion and Analysis

5.1 Business Review

In the first half of 2004, the Chinese government adopted a series of macro-economic control measures, and achieved good results. The national economy maintained an upward momentum of steady growth and GDP rose by 9.7%. Demands for petroleum and petrochemical products continued to grow accordingly. According to the Company's statistics, the apparent domestic consumption of refined oil products (gasoline, diesel and kerosene including jet fuel) in the first half of this year increased by 24.6% over the same period last year whilst the apparent consumption of petrochemical products (in term of ethylene) increased by 15.59%.

In the first half of 2004, prices of international crude oil fluctuated at a high level. Refining margin was improved and the chemical industries were in the rising trend of a new cycle. The Company closely monitored the changes in the domestic and overseas market of crude oil and petrochemical products, and responsively adopted effective operation measures, actively explored the market, optimised resources, rationalised structures, and maximised operation volume. As a result, the oil and gas production increased steadily, oil refining and petrochemical facilities operated at a high utilisation rate, the sales of refined oil products increased significantly and marketing structures were further optimised. At the same time, the Company further enhanced the internal reform, streamlised the assets portfolio and reinforced internal control. As a result of the joint efforts made by all the employees together with the Company, the Company achieved remarkable operating results.

According to the PRC Accounting Rules and Regulations, the Company's income from principal operations was RMB 265.71billion, up by 36.4% over the first half of 2003. The Company's net profit was RMB 15.04 billion, up by 54.0% over the first half of 2003. Based on the number of shares outstanding at the end of the reporting period, earnings per share were RMB 0.17. According to the International Financial Reporting Standards, turnover and other operating revenues amounted to RMB 275.44 billion, up by 34.1% over the first half of 2003. Profit attributable to shareholders was RMB 16.15 billion, up by 50.6% over the first half of 2003. Based on the number of shares outstanding at the end of the reporting period, earnings per share were RMB 0.19.

The Board of Directors has decided to distribute an interim dividend of RMB 0.04 per share for the first half of 2004, which is equivalent to RMB 4.00 per ADS.

5.1.1 Production and Operation

(1) Exploration and production segment

In the first half of 2004, the average international crude oil price increased significantly compared with the same period last year. The Platt's global Brent spot price averaged USD 33.65 per barrel, up by 16.9% over the first half of 2003. Domestic prices of crude oil generally followed the trend in the international market. However, as there is a one-month time lag of domestic crude oil prices behind the international crude oil prices and the increase in international benchmarked prices for the Company's self-produced oil was not significant, the average crude price realised by the Company during the first half of 2004 was USD 29.62 per barrel, up by 2.5% over the same period last year.

In the first half of 2004, the Company achieved good results in exploration, development and production of crude oil and natural gas.

In exploration, the Company optimised exploration plan and profile of oil and gas reserves by taking the zone exploration as the main objective and the discovery of qualified proven reserves as the primary goal. New blocks in Tahe oilfield and deep layers in Jiyang trough demonstrated good indications of oil and gas reserves, and sound results were achieved in exploration in mature fields in eastern China. Important progress was achieved in the natural gas exploration blocks such as in northeastern Sichuan. Exploration wells in 6 key blocks in Ordos, Shengli, Zhongyuan, etc. obtained commercial oil and gas flow. In addition, oil and gas were discovered in a number of major exploration wells in the new blocks in western China. In the first half of 2004, the newly added proved geological reserves of crude oil amounted to approximately 133 million tonnes, whilst the newly added geological reserves of natural gas was approximately 62.3 billion cubic meters.

In development, the Company aimed to optimise its development plans and improve the quality of production capacity build-up. In the first half of 2004, newly developed production capacity of crude oil and natural gas reached 2.29 million tonnes per year and 415 million cubic meters per year, respectively.

In production, the Company seized the opportunity of high crude oil prices and carefully arranged oil and gas production. The Company exercised comprehensive management over its existing oilfields and consolidated its foundation for stable output, and the production of oil and gas increased steadily.

In addition, the Company optimised the allocation of crude oil resources, further increased the processing volume of sour crude, optimised logistics and reduced production costs. The Company also optimised product mix, increased production of diesel and high value-added products and improved profitability. Furthermore, the Company enhanced its management over the operation of production facilities, and further improved major economic and technical indicators for oil refining, such as light product yield and refining yield.

The financial information presented in this section are derived from the Company's audited financial statements that have been prepared in accordance with IFRS.

In the first half of 2004, the Company's turnover and other operating revenues were RMB 275.4 billion and operating profit was RMB 27.3 billion, respectively, representing an increase of 34.1% and 47.2%, respectively, over those in the first half of 2003. These changes are largely attributable to the fact that the Company timely took the opportunities of the rapid growth of domestic GDP and high prices of petrochemical products, further expanded resources and market, increased processing volume of crude oil and production of ethylene, reinforced management, deepened corporate reforms, rationalised asset portfolio, and realised satisfactory results.

- 5.8.1 Turnover and other operating revenues

In the first half of 2004, the Company's turnover and other operating revenues were RMB 275.4 billion. Of which, turnover was RMB 265.7 billion, up by 34.5% from that in the first half of 2003. This was mainly due to the fact that in the first half of 2004, prices of crude oil, petroleum products and chemical products all increased in the global market, and the Company seized the market opportunity to increase its refining throughput and sales volume of its refined products. As a result, the Company's sales volume of major petrochemical products increased significantly. The Company's other operating revenues was RMB 9.7 billion, up by 26.1% from that in the first half of 2003. This was mainly due to the increase of sales revenue from its sale of raw and auxiliary materials and other products and services to China Petrochemical Corporation and its subsidiaries (excluding the Company) ("Sinopec Group") and to third parties.

The following table lists the Company's principal external sales volume and average realised prices, and changes between the first half of 2004 and the first half of 2003:

In the first half of 2004, the Company's other purchasing expenses were RMB 94.3 billion, up by 38.1% over the first half of 2003, accounting for 38.0% of the total operating expenses. This increase was mainly due to the increased costs of outsourced refined oil products and chemical feedstock.

Selling, general and administrative expenses

In the first half of 2004, the Company's selling, general and administrative expenses were RMB 14.2 billion, up by 24.4% over the first half of 2003. This increase was mainly due to:
