BHP BILLITON APPOINTS PRESIDENT ENERGY COAL

BHP Billiton announced today the appointment of Mahomed Seedat as President Energy Coal. In this role Mr Seedat will have responsibility for BHP Billiton's domestic and export thermal coal businesses. BHP Billiton is one of the largest producers and marketers of export thermal coal and has interests in operations in South Africa, North America, South America and Australia. Mr Seedat will be based in Johannesburg, South Africa and will report to Philip Aiken, Group President Energy.

Mr Seedat has more than 20 years experience in the minerals industry, most recently as the President and COO Ingwe, responsible for BHP Billiton's energy coal business in southern Africa, which consists of seven mines with total production exceeding 55 million tons per annum. From 2001 to 2004 Mr Seedat was President and COO of BHP Billiton's southern Africa aluminium business with full strategic and operational responsibility for the three aluminium smelters in South Africa and Mozambique. Prior to this he was the General Manager Hillside Aluminium, responsible for significantly improving production and decreasing costs, making Hillside amongst the lowest cost producers of aluminium in the world.

Commenting on the appointment, Mr Aiken said: "Mahomed's depth of technical experience and commercial focus, and his outstanding record as a leader of large and complex businesses, will serve him well in his new role as we further develop our energy coal business across the globe. "

Mr Seedat will take on his new responsibilities with immediate effect.
