FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Hitachi Announces Commencement of Tender Offer

TOKYO, Japan, October 24, 2006 Hitachi, Ltd. (NYSE:HIT/TSE:6501) today announced that it would commence a tender offer for shares of Clarion Co., Ltd. (TSE:6796; Clarion) as it had announced on October 11, 2006.

1. Purpose of Tender Offer

In December 2000, Hitachi and Clarion established a joint venture company, HCX Corporation (HCX), to develop Car Information Systems (CIS). Subsequently, in December 2004, Hitachi purchased Clarion shares to become Clarion s largest shareholder. Then in April 2005, the two companies entered into an agreement to comprehensively strengthen cooperation in the CIS field. Based on this agreement, Hitachi and Clarion have been cooperating in technological development and materials procurement for navigation systems and other products and systems.

Hitachi is channeling resources into its automotive systems business, which includes CIS, to strengthen it as one of the core businesses of the Hitachi Group. Amid the ongoing technological race in the auto industry to develop next-generation vehicles that fuse the four essential automobile functions driving, steering, braking and communicating growth of CIS centered on navigation systems is seen by Hitachi as a vital element for development of the automotive systems business. Hitachi believes that it is necessary to strengthen the businesses relating to CIS, which will be a key component of the communications function of next-generation automobiles.

Hitachi has decided to conduct a tender offer for Clarion shares (the Tender Offer) to make it a member of the Hitachi Group with the view to further developing the CIS business by reinforcing ties with Clarion. This will be achieved by making even greater use of Clarion s planning and development capabilities for in-vehicle entertainment systems such as audio-visual and navigation systems and devices, as well as its marketing capabilities that have been applied in the aftermarket and with automakers around the world, including Japan.

After the Tender Offer, subject to Clarion becoming a subsidiary of Hitachi, Xanavi Informatics Corporation (Xanavi,) a wholly owned subsidiary of Hitachi, will be made a wholly owned subsidiary of Clarion. Hitachi believes that by promoting system development based on an integrated approach by Clarion and Xanavi, it can strengthen the basis of the Hitachi Group s CIS business in platform software for products, in the development of technologies for the future and a stronger total supply chain from the procurement of materials through production, sales and services.

Through these reorganization moves, Hitachi, Clarion, Xanavi and HCX will work toward integrating their business plans and operating systems to accelerate management and ensure the effective utilization of resources. In fiscal 2005, Xanavi and Clarion reported net sales of 44.4 billion yen and 184.1 billion yen, respectively. In fiscal 2010, the Hitachi Group s CIS business is targeting net sales of 290.0 billion yen on a consolidated basis. Based on the basic agreement signed between Hitachi and Clarion on October 11, 2006, Hitachi, Clarion and Xanavi will look into deepening cooperation and capturing even greater synergies in their operations in future business plans.

Clarion s stock is currently listed on the first sections of the Tokyo Stock Exchange (TSE) and the Osaka Securities Exchange (OSE). However, because no upper limit has been set on the number of shares to be purchased, it is possible that Clarion will fall within the delisting standards of the TSE and the OSE following execution of the Tender Offer. Nevertheless, as there is no intention to delist Clarion s stock through the Tender Offer, Hitachi will make its best effort in order to maintain listing of Clarion s stock should this situation arise. Notwithstanding these efforts, if a delisting of Clarion s stock becomes unavoidable, Hitachi and Clarion will discuss necessary measures to protect the interests of Clarion s minority shareholders. The specific measures to be taken in these cases will be determined after, and based on the outcome of, the Tender Offer.

Clarion s Board of Directors has expressed its approval of the Tender Offer.

Because Hitachi intends to purchase all tendered shares even if the total tendered shares exceed the planned number to be purchased except 292,148 shares of Clarion s treasury stocks (as of March 31, 2006), the maximum funds required could be approximately 55,601 million yen.

Nevertheless, as there is no intention to delist Clarion s stock through the Tender Offer, Hitachi will make its best effort in order to maintain listing of Clarion s stock should this situation arise. Notwithstanding these efforts, if a delisting of Clarion s stock becomes unavoidable, Hitachi and Clarion will discuss necessary measures to protect the interests of Clarion s minority shareholders. The specific measures to be taken in these cases will be determined after, and based on the outcome of, the Tender Offer.
- (3) The name and brands of Clarion will be maintained in their current form even if Hitachi holds a majority of the total voting rights of shareholders of Clarion on or after the settlement date of the Tender Offer.
- (4) The board of directors of Clarion after the first general meeting of shareholders of Clarion after the date when Clarion comes to hold all of the issued shares in Xanavi will be made up of nine members; Hitachi shall designate five of the nine members, and Clarion shall designate four of the nine members. Hitachi, Ltd. (the Offeror, Hitachi or the Company) hereby notifies the commencement of a tender offer pursuant to the Securities and Exchange Law of Japan (the Law) as follows:

1. Purpose of Tender Offer

In December 2000, Hitachi and Clarion Co., Ltd. (the Subject Company or Clarion) established a joint venture company, HCX Corporation (HCX), to develop Car Information Systems (CIS). Subsequently, in December 2004, Hitachi purchased Clarion shares to become Clarion slargest shareholder. Then in April 2005, the two companies entered into an agreement to comprehensively strengthen cooperation in the CIS field. Based on this agreement, Hitachi and Clarion have been cooperating in technological development and materials procurement for navigation systems and other products and systems.

Hitachi is channeling resources into its automotive systems business, which includes CIS, to strengthen it as one of the core businesses of the Hitachi Group. Amid the ongoing technological race in the auto industry to develop next-generation vehicles that fuse the four essential automobile functions driving, steering, braking and communicating growth of CIS centered on navigation systems is seen by Hitachi as a vital element for development of the automotive systems business. Hitachi believes that it is necessary to strengthen the businesses relating to CIS, which will be a key component of the communications function of next-generation automobiles.

Hitachi has decided to conduct a tender offer for Clarion shares (the Tender Offer) to make it a member of the Hitachi Group with the view to further developing the CIS business by reinforcing ties with Clarion. This will be achieved by making even greater use of Clarion s planning and development capabilities for in-vehicle entertainment systems such as audio-visual and navigation systems and devices, as well as its marketing capabilities that have been applied in the aftermarket and with automakers around the world, including Japan.

After the Tender Offer, subject to Clarion becoming a subsidiary of Hitachi, Xanavi Informatics Corporation (Xanavi), a wholly owned subsidiary of Hitachi, will be made a wholly owned subsidiary of Clarion. Hitachi believes that by promoting system development based on an integrated approach by Clarion and Xanavi, it can strengthen the basis of the Hitachi Group's CIS business in platform software for products, in the development of technologies for the future and a stronger total supply chain from the procurement of materials through production, sales and services.

Through these reorganization moves, Hitachi, Clarion, Xanavi and HCX will work toward integrating their business plans and operating systems to accelerate management and ensure the effective utilization of resources. In fiscal 2005, Xanavi and Clarion reported net sales of 44.4 billion yen and 184.1 billion yen, respectively. In fiscal 2010, the Hitachi Group s CIS business is targeting net sales of 290.0 billion yen on a consolidated basis. Based on the basic agreement signed between Hitachi and Clarion on October 11, 2006, Hitachi, Clarion and Xanavi will look into deepening cooperation and capturing even greater synergies in their operations in future business plans.

Clarion s stock is currently listed on the first sections of the Tokyo Stock Exchange (the TSE) and the Osaka Securities Exchange (the OSE). However, because no upper limit has been set on the number of shares to be purchased, it is possible that Clarion will fall within the delisting standards of the TSE and the OSE following execution of the Tender Offer. Nevertheless, as there is no intention to delist Clarion s stock through the Tender Offer, Hitachi will make its best effort in order to maintain listing of Clarion s stock should this situation arise. Notwithstanding these efforts, if a delisting of Clarion s stock becomes unavoidable, Hitachi and Clarion will discuss necessary measures to protect the interests of Clarion s minority shareholders. The specific measures to be taken in these cases will be determined after, and based on the outcome of, the Tender Offer.

3. Purposes of Tender Offer

In December 2000, Hitachi and Clarion established a joint venture company, HCX Corporation (HCX), to develop Car Information Systems (CIS). Subsequently, in December 2004, Hitachi purchased Clarion shares to become Clarion s largest shareholder. Then in April 2005, the two companies entered into an agreement to comprehensively strengthen cooperation in the CIS field. Based on this agreement, Hitachi and Clarion have been cooperating in technological development and materials procurement for navigation systems and other products and systems.

Hitachi is channeling resources into its automotive systems business, which includes CIS, to strengthen it as one of the core businesses of the Hitachi Group. Amid the ongoing technological race in the auto industry to develop next-generation vehicles that fuse the four essential automobile functions driving, steering, braking and communicating growth of CIS centered on navigation systems is seen by Hitachi as a vital element for development of the automotive systems business. Hitachi believes that it is necessary to strengthen the businesses relating to CIS, which will be a key component of the communications function of next-generation automobiles.

Hitachi has decided to conduct a tender offer for Clarion shares (the Tender Offer) to make it a member of the Hitachi Group with the view to further developing the CIS business by reinforcing ties with Clarion. This will be achieved by making even greater use of Clarion s planning and development capabilities for in-vehicle entertainment systems such as audio-visual and navigation systems and devices, as well as its marketing capabilities that have been applied in the aftermarket and with automakers around the world, including Japan.

After the Tender Offer, subject to Clarion becoming a subsidiary of Hitachi, Xanavi Informatics Corporation (Xanavi), a wholly owned subsidiary of Hitachi, will be made a wholly owned subsidiary of Clarion. Hitachi believes that by promoting system development based on an integrated approach by Clarion and Xanavi, it can strengthen the basis of the Hitachi Group's CIS business in platform software for products, in the development of technologies for the future and a stronger total supply chain from the procurement of materials through production, sales and services.

Through these reorganization moves, Hitachi, Clarion, Xanavi and HCX will work toward integrating their business plans and operating systems to accelerate management and ensure the effective utilization of resources. In fiscal 2005, Xanavi and Clarion reported net sales of 44.4 billion yen and 184.1 billion yen, respectively. In fiscal 2010, the Hitachi Group s CIS business is targeting net sales of 290.0 billion yen on a consolidated basis. Based on the basic agreement signed between Hitachi and Clarion on October 11, 2006, Hitachi, Clarion and Xanavi will look into deepening cooperation and capturing even greater synergies in their operations in future business plans.

Clarion s stock is currently listed on the first sections of the Tokyo Stock Exchange (the TSE) and the Osaka Securities Exchange (the OSE). However, because no upper limit has been set on the number of shares to be purchased, it is possible that Clarion will fall within the delisting standards of the TSE and the OSE following execution of the Tender Offer. Nevertheless, as there is no intention to delist Clarion s stock through the Tender Offer, Hitachi will make its best effort in order to maintain listing of Clarion s stock should this situation arise. Notwithstanding these efforts, if a delisting of Clarion s stock becomes unavoidable, Hitachi and Clarion will discuss necessary measures to protect the interests of Clarion s minority shareholders. The specific measures to be taken in these cases will be determined after, and based on the outcome of, the Tender Offer.

Clarion s Board of Directors has expressed its approval of the Tender Offer.
