Cellu Tissue Acquisition Progress Update

October 29, 2010

Overview:

As you know, Clearwater Paper recently announced it agreed to acquire Cellu Tissue Holdings, Inc. We wanted to update you regarding the progress with the acquisition. The transaction is expected to close in the fourth quarter of 2010, and is subject to the customary closing conditions, including Cellu Tissue shareholder approval.

The acquisition will be a unique opportunity to establish a combined company with a national manufacturing presence as a papermaker and converter. The complementary resources of the two companies support a strategy to grow the retail converted private label business while creating diversity through the away-from-home, machine glazed, and hard roll (parent roll) segments. The bottom line is the combined company, post-closing, should improve our ability to efficiently manage our tissue business, better serve customers and meet market demands.

Key Points Post Closing:

1. Growth: A unique opportunity to establish a national manufacturing presence as a papermaker and converter.
2. New markets: Complementary resources to expand channel diversity (e.g. mass merchandizers, value and dollar store businesses).
3. Efficiencies: Improve our ability to efficiently manage the tissue business, better serve customers and meet market demands.

Integration Planning strategy:

Teams from both companies have begun critical integration planning together to make sure all systems are optimized and running in the best possible fashion on the day of closing. Longer-term planning is also underway for post-closing.

Following is the integration planning strategy:

Our goal is to move through closing of the transaction, and post-close with no operational disruption.

We want to quickly integrate areas, post-closing, which are critical to operate as a combined entity (email, financials, etc.)

We will NOT be immediately changing brand/logos on business materials, signs and such except for sales managers' business cards. Logo/brand changeover will be implemented throughout 2011.

We will initiate a full enterprise-wide integration process after closing.

We are taking the time to understand how both companies work in order to most effectively plan for integration.

We intend to be better as a combined company versus two independent businesses, by focusing on talent, expertise and assets.

One thing that will not change is the importance of delivering exceptional customer service and quality products. For all of us, the new opportunities for growth and success come with helping our customers excel in their business and improve their brands. The integration should not be disruptive to customers, but more supportive.

Updated FAQs:

Q: When is the closing?

A: The transaction is expected to close in the fourth quarter of 2010, and is subject to the customary closing conditions, including Cellu Tissue shareholder approval.

Q: What are these lawsuits we hear about? Will it affect the closing?

A: There have been lawsuits filed against Cellu Tissue, its directors and certain officers, and Clearwater Paper is also named. These kinds of lawsuits are commonly filed in transactions of this type. We intend to vigorously defend the lawsuit.

Forward Looking Statements Safe Harbor
