NaviSite Wins Bid to Acquire Assets of Interliant, Inc.

Continues to demonstrate leadership in managed services arena

Andover, Mass. - May 14, 2003 - NaviSite, Inc. (Nasdaq: NAVI), a leading provider of Application and Infrastructure Management Services, today announced it was the prevailing bidder at the bankruptcy auction to acquire the assets and certain liabilities of Interliant, Inc. (OTCBB: INIT.OB), a managed infrastructure solutions provider headquartered in Purchase, New York. Interliant specializes in managing corporate email, messaging and collaboration applications, and IT infrastructure for more than 300 customers.

Under the terms approved by the bankruptcy court yesterday, NaviSite will acquire the assets and assume certain liabilities of Interliant, totaling approximately $6.2 million dollars, through a NaviSite wholly-owned subsidiary. As consideration, NaviSite will pay approximately $7.0 million dollars in cash, credits and short term notes, subject to a purchase price adjustment based on Interliant's net worth calculated at closing. The transaction is subject to a Sale Order being entered by the bankruptcy court and the closing taking place by this Friday, May 16, 2003.

"The acquisition of the Interliant business is another important step in the growth of NaviSite as a leader in the managed application and infrastructure services industry," said Arthur Becker, CEO of NaviSite. "The earnings accretive nature of this transaction reflects NaviSite's commitment to profitability and is a strong measure of our financial health."

Founded in 1997, Interliant offers a broad range of managed messaging, email migration, and collaborative application development services built on industry-leading platforms such as Lotus Notes and Microsoft Exchange. Interliant also operates data centers in the United States and London where their hosting platforms and best-in-class technology support a global customer base.

"Interliant's experience, service offerings, and strong customer base in the messaging arena are an ideal fit to enhance NaviSite's services portfolio," said Gabriel Ruhan, COO for NaviSite. "This move will also allow NaviSite to leverage investments it has made in data center and infrastructure assets as well."

In the last several months, NaviSite has also announced the acquisition of three additional companies: ClearBlue Technologies Management, Inc. in late December; Avasta, Inc., in early February; and, most recently, the acquisition of Conxion Corp, in April.
