Total Emerson	+15	+10 to +15	+10 to +15

July 2011 Order Comments:

Emerson order growth remained solid in the trailing three-month period, led by growth in the industrial-related businesses. Excluding currency, the trailing underlying three-month order growth was 6 percent. Currency exchange rates positively impacted orders by approximately 6 percentage points. With our strong backlog position, we should have solid revenue growth during the next several quarters, despite the U.S. and European economies exhibiting considerable weakness with no near-term catalysts to generate better growth.

Process Management order growth remained strong across global end markets. Project and MRO order strength continued, particularly in the oil and gas industry, but order growth comparisons will become more difficult. Currency exchange rates positively impacted orders by approximately 9 percentage points.

As expected, Industrial Automation orders slowed as a result of difficult comparisons (prior year orders were up approximately 40%), which will continue to impact order trends in the months ahead. Strength continued in the power generating alternators and fluid automation businesses, which was partially offset by weakness in the electrical drives business and a slowdown in the power transmission business. Currency exchange rates positively impacted orders by 8 percentage points.

Network Power orders increased modestly in the trailing three-month period. Strong growth in the Network Power Systems business in Asia and Latin America as well as in the uninterruptible power supply and precision cooling businesses was partially offset by weakness in the embedded computing and power businesses and the energy systems business. Orders were negatively impacted by price increases in the embedded computing and power businesses. Currency exchange rates positively impacted orders by 4 percentage points.

Climate Technologies orders remained slightly negative for the trailing three-month period. Continued softness in the U.S. residential market and a decrease in the temperature controls business were partially offset by growth in the global refrigeration business and in Asia.

Tools and Storage trailing three-month orders reflected growth in the professional tools business and the storage businesses, partially offset by weakness in the wet/dry vacuums business.
