Mitchell Stern To Leave Fox Television Stations And Twentieth Television

Agrees To Head DIRECTV Upon Approval And Completion Of News Corp's 34 Percent
Acquisition Of Hughes Electronics

NEW YORK, NY, November 21, 2003 - News Corporation today announced that Mitchell Stern will step down from his position as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Fox Television Stations and Twentieth Television. Mr. Stern has agreed to become President and Chief Executive Officer of DIRECTV after the completion of News Corp.'s acquisition of 34 percent of Hughes Electronics. The acquisition is subject to regulatory approvals.

Mr. Stern's offer to head DIRECTV, the United States' leading provider of digital satellite entertainment services, was made by Chase Carey, President and Chief Executive designate of Hughes Electronics.

As Chairman and CEO of Fox's 35 owned-and-operated stations and its Twentieth Television syndication arm, Mr. Stern has reported to News Corp.'s Deputy Chief Operating Officer, Lachlan Murdoch. Mr. Murdoch will continue to lead Fox Television Stations and Twentieth Television.

Mr. Carey said: "As head of Fox Television Stations, Mitch has led a large, diverse business in a highly competitive environment. Under Mitch, the station group has become the industry leader and I am confident he will lead DIRECTV to the top of the pay-TV market if and when the acquisition is approved.

"DIRECTV must distinguish itself as the best television experience in the world. No executive is better qualified than Mitch Stern to fulfill this vision. Mitch will bring a unique combination of expertise, experience and television savvy that covers the spectrum of marketing, sales, programming and bottom-line management."

Mr. Stern said: "It has been a privilege over the past decade to work with the best broadcasting team in America at Fox and I know the station group and Twentieth Television will remain industry leaders. I am very excited by this offer to lead DIRECTV - which is already one of the great success stories in American television - at a crucial time in the company's history.

"My job from day one will be to marry the best entertainment offerings with the most advanced and appealing technologies for the more than 12 million DIRECTV subscribers. Viewers can expect an even better DIRECTV, featuring greater programming choice, digital video recorders, more high-definition channels, more interactive services and enhanced customer service.

"DIRECTV has a remarkably talented group of employees who should be proud of their achievements thus far and excited by the opportunities and challenges ahead."

Since 1998, Mr. Stern has been Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Fox Television Stations, one of the nation's largest broadcast groups, comprising 35 stations in 26 markets covering nearly 45 percent of U.S. television homes. The group includes duopolies in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas, Washington DC, Houston, Minneapolis, Phoenix and Orlando. His role also included oversight of Twentieth Television, Fox's television production and syndication unit, as well as sales, marketing, and program scheduling for the Fox O&Os' Regional Sports Networks.

Mr. Stern had been President and Chief Operating Officer of Fox Television Stations since January 1993. He was previously promoted to Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the Fox stations group in May 1992. He was promoted in 1990 to Senior Vice President of Fox Television Stations and Vice President, Station Manager of KTTV.

He joined Fox in July 1986 as Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Fox Television Stations and was responsible for all financial areas relating to the stations and corporate home office.

Before joining Fox, Mr. Stern worked for eight years with the CBS Television Stations Division. He held several financial management positions, including Director of Planning and Administration at WCBS-TV, New York, and at WBBM-TV, Chicago.

Mr. Stern graduated with a Masters of Business Administration from the University of Chicago and received a bachelor's degree from the University of Pennsylvania.
